PROPOSALS
By Joseph M Sanderson,

For Publishing by Subscription,

A Biography of the Signers
OF THE
Declaration of Independence,

Accompanied with Plates.

To which will be annexed a History of the Proceedings of Congress, during the passage of the Law, and the Declaration itself, with the fac simile Engravings of the Signatures.

By JOHN SANDERSON.

TO THE PUBLIC.

When we consider the personal qualities of the statesmen whose names are affixed to the Declaration of Independence, the perilous occasion which demanded the exercise of their wisdom and deliberation, and the influence of their councils on the interests of mankind, we must acknowledge that very rarely a more imposing spectacle has been offered to the world; and we shall seek in vain in the annals of nations, for an event more worthy of commemoration, and of being cherished forever in the hearts of a grateful and generous people. The love of independence is interwoven with the frame and constitution of the human mind. It is almost the first sentiment that animates the infant's features in the cradle; and amongst all the actions and enterprizes of man, none has awaked into activity a greater exertion of the virtuous energies of his nature, none has excited a greater warmth of veneration, and has more imperious claims upon our gratitude, than resistance to tyranny and political aggression.

In all republican states the first tribute of genius has been paid to the patriot or the hero who has promoted the cause of liberty and maintained the independence and dignity of man. The animated canvas and breathing marble have rescued his features from the grasp of death, and the pen of the historian has inscribed the achievements to the imperishable records of fame. It would indeed be no favorable prognostic of the perpetuity of our republican institutions to discover an insensibility to the obligations we owe the memory of the illustrious patrons of American freedom. They have raised us, by their magnanimity, from the arbitrary dominion of a foreign power, to the distinguished elevation of a sovereign and independent people; they have asserted and maintained the imprescriptible rights of humanity by the "mutual pledge of their pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors;" and, as long as virtue holds her empire in the hearts of their successors, the example of these generous benefactors will not be lost to the world; their names will not pass away nor be forgotten, or their glorious deeds be confounded in the common and casual transaction of life.—Ingratitude is a vice that in nations, as well as individuals, indicates the last degree of degeneracy and corruption; it is a vice that implies the absence of every virtue; it was in the age of Caligula that the name of the Scipios was proscribed, that the state of Brutus brought death on its possessor.

"The glory of our ancestors is the light of posterity," and the homage of the living cannot be offered to the merits of the illustrious dead with an effectual or sterile admiration. Great and splendid actions will seldom be achieved by men who have humble or ordinary objects in prospect. It is by contemplating the life and character of those who are marked out from the multitude by their eminent qualities, that we become emulous of their virtues and their renown. The trophies of Miltiades interrupted the sleeps of Themistocles; and Theseus, hearing the exploits of Hercules, was fired with his spirit, and became the successful rival of his fame. The rude savage of the desert listens with rapture to the deeds of his ancestors, and hangs around his hut the emblems of his father's valour.

More need not be said to enforce the utility of the publication we have undertaken, and which we now submit to the patronage of our fellow citizens, with a hope, that from the liberality of their encouragement, we shall be able to present it to the public worthy of their approbation. We must depend for the illustration of many of the characters of our biography, upon the generosity of their surviving relatives and friends, to furnish us with whatever interesting materials may be in their possession; for which, with our grateful acknowledgments, we promise a copy of the entire work as a compensation.

CONDITIONS.

I. The work will be published in numbers or half volumes of 200 pages, octavo, and contained in ten numbers. To the first will be prefixed an appropriate frontispiece—and the work will be commenced with the declaration of independence, with engraved fac similes of the signatures, and a compendious detail of the proceedings of congress, during the passage of the law. Each of the lives, unless when it is impracticable, will be preceded by a likeness of the person, engraved by the best artists in the United States.

II. It will be printed on fine paper, made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per number, payable on delivery.

ON A NEW MADE GRAVE NEAR BOLTON PRIORY.

Sweet be thy rest! near holy shrine
A purer relic never lay:
A grave of blessedness is thine,
More rich than piles of sculptured clay.

For softly on these piles of knolls
The feet of happy wanderers tread;
While Wharf his silver chariot rolls
In music to his ample bed.

And none are here but those who come
In gentle indolence to roam,
Or feed in Bolton's holy gloom
Sweet memories of a distant home.

Sweet be thy rest!—the toils and woes
Of man, have left this magic bound,
Since Beauty's awful Genius chose,
And breath'd upon the sacred ground.

Those cliffs where purple shadows creep,
The stream scarce gleaming thro' the dell,
These giant groves that guard its sleep,
The present power of Beauty tell.

The crosier's place, the altar's stone,
Now echo gentle wisdom's speech;
And those dim cloisters, mute and lone,
Their meek and holy moral teach.

The shrine, the mitred Abbot's niche,
Where once unheeded incense spread,
Now with the woodbine's wreath is rich,
And sweets from vagrant roses shed.

Chang'd to a bounteous Baron's hall,
His gateway greets the wand'ring guest,
And only on its arrass'd wall
The frowning warrior lifts his crest.

Where by a lonely taper's light
The cowl'd and captive bigot knelt,
Now summer sun's beam cheerly bright,
And evening's softest shadows melt.

Where once the yelling torrent's jaws
Death to the youthful hunter gave,
Scarce frolic Beauty feigns a pause,
Then trusts her light foot to the wave.

Emblem of Passion's changeful tide!
The flood that wreck'd the heedless Boy,
In after years is thought to glide
Through sheltering bowers of social joy.

For such a tomb of sweets and flowers,
By social gladness sacred made,
Midst warbling streams and social bowers,
The priest of Persia's Eden stray'd.

But far from this shall be the torch
Of frantic mirth and impious rite;
A Christian Hafez guards the porch,
And decks the Garden of Delight.

And only kindred hearts can bear
The smiling peace that slumbers here;
None but the pure in spirit dare
Gaze on a scene to Heaven so near.

The souls of men expire not with their bodies—they resemble the lamp in Gidion's pitchers; the latter must be broken to render the former visible.

The winds and thunder set forth God's power; the firmness of the socks, and the incorruptibility of the heavens, are an obscure representation of his unchangeableness; but holiness is the most orient pearl in the crown of heaven, and only shines in reasonable creatures.

FROM LEWIS'S COMIC SKETCHES.

As an instance of provincial dialect, I beg leave to relate what happened a few years ago at Poulton in the Fylde, in the wild parts of Lancashire. The story descended to me in its provincial dialect, by a native who was present.

There were five persons, the wise heads of the town. They consisted of the squire, the exciseman, the apothecary, the lawyer, and the curate, who held a deep consultation whether a hedgehog was an animal, a vegetable, an artificial, or a natural curiosity.

First—the lawyer defined it to be a thing heaven never made, and as how he had a great mind to serve it with "a copy of a stick."

The exciseman declared, "I canno' gage it, nor can I gaum it; but for sure and sartin it must be somewhat, or somewhat else."

The apothecary, scratching his head, very sagaciously and significantly observed, "I count it to be a sort of a live thistle."

The squire asked Robin, the hostler, if he did not think it was a sort of a round a-bout curry-comb.

And the parson, after downing his spectacles, and glaring at it for half an hour, exclaimed, "ods boddikins, for sure and sartin it must be the devil's nutmeg grater."

Such was the profound consultation of these five wise men of Gotham, or rather of Poulton: such were their enquiries that they ended just where they began.

ALEXANDRIA:
THURSDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 28.

A writer in the New-Bedford Mercury, as a dissuasive to the occupation of Florida by the government of the United States, has made out an estimate to shew that, from Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard alone, there are, on this side of and round the Cape of Good Hope, about ninety ships, which, with their return cargoes, are estimated at the value of 6,200,000 dollars—most of which, it is not unreasonably concluded, would fall a sacrifice, in case of sudden war, to the cupidity of the swarm of privateers now on the ocean, who would have, generally, no scruples to exchange their Mexican, Old Providence, and Artigau flags, for Spanish colors. This writer is not more opposed to war than we are, if it can be avoided. Far be it from us to provoke it. But, if Spain refuses the form of ratification of her Treaty with us, and we are menaced with more Indian irruptions from the Florida Territory, in violation of the existing Treaty; not only public opinion will require, but national law will justify, the occupation of Florida. And if national law, the rule of conduct for nations, do justify it, what right would Spain have, were it in her power, to make war on the United States? There is, however, little danger of war, where both parties are adverse to such a resort. [Nat. Int.

MINT OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Mint having lately received a fresh supply of copper, will now furnish Cents, to any reasonable amount, in exchange for an equal amount of specie, or paper receivable in the Bank of the U. States. [Ibid.

Some of the enterprising merchants of Ohio, contemplate sending steam boats, with cargoes of Kentucky and Ohio productions, direct to the West India islands, particularly Cuba, and to return with new cargoes, without touching at New-Orleans.

[Albany Gaz.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.

A gentleman who came from Wilmington yesterday morning, states, that on the evening before the grist-mills on the Brandywine occupied by Mr. Thomas Lea, were burnt down on Sunday evening. About 7,000 barrels of flour were destroyed. The whole loss is estimated at 20,000 dols. [Union.

Letters from the Postmaster and others at Blakely, Alabama, of the 25th September, are received at New-York, which state that that town continued healthy—while Mobile, on the opposite side of the bay, was doomed to death and ruin—45 persons it was said had died in the latter place the preceding week, and about 300 in the last 3 months, which is supposed to be one-third the population of the place. [Columbian.

Columbia, S. C. October 18.

Wheat and corn crops have been better this season in South Carolina than for many years past. Owing to the low price of cotton last year, most of the cotton land had been planted with corn, and the extraordinary yield has given us a greater harvest of that article than was ever known in this state. In the upper districts it is freely offered for 25 cents. Cotton crops have not been so favorable. The rot has been severe in many places, and crops consequently light. They may average throughout two-thirds of a whole crop. The season for picking cotton has been favorable. Rain is now wanted to get in our fall grain. We have had no rain of consequence for the last two months

Frost has fallen in Columbia for the last four nights. This is unusually early, and will probably do further injury to the opening pods of cotton yet in the fields. [Teles.

Meetings have been held at St. John's, N. B. and measures adopted to make some provision for the ensuing winter for needy emigrants. It was voted to open an office for the registry of emigrants—to allow them lands to hut themselves on, with liberty to cut wood for fuel for themselves—and a subscription was opened towards furnishing them with provisions, and 7 or 800 dollars were subscribed.

Baltimore, October 26.

The following letter was dropped into the Post-office on Saturday night, addressed to the Post Master of Baltimore.

Aux Cayes, (St. Domingo,) September 11, 1819.

SIR—Should you think it advisable you can have published in some public newspaper, the following note, for the benefit of those concerned.

On my passage to this place I fell in with the Patriot brig Mars, captain Courtwan, (a native of this place, and nearly all a black crew) commissioned by Louis Aury, at the small island of Old Providence. The brig had in company the ship Vermont, of New-York, which she had captured 22 days previous, saying she had a Spanish cargo on board, and was sent to the island of Old Providence for condemnation. I did not learn the captain's name, but parted with them a few miles to the leeward of St. Jago de Cuba, on the 19th of last month, (August.)

[Translated for the Philadelphia Freeman's Journal.]

Capture of Santa Fee, Capital of New Grenada, by the army of General Bolivar.

His Britannic Majesty's brig Beaver, of 10 guns, capt Saumerez, from Carthagena, arrived at Kingston, (Jamaica) on the 14th September last; by her official information was received, that on the 1st of July, a battle took place between Bolivar and the troops of Spain, at a place called Yanze, in the valley of Sogamose, in the province of Junfa. Bolivar had 2000 infantry and 500 cavalry in opposition to the forces of the Spanish general Barasino, of 3000 royalists.—The battle lasted till 10 o'clock at night, when the King's troops were obliged to retreat in great disorder.

A second battle was fought on the 25th of the same month (July) between the same parties, at Pantano de Bargas, near the capital of the province of Junfa, which lasted 5 hours, with desperation on both sides. Bolivar obtained a complete victory over the Royalists, who abandoned all their artillery, baggage and treasures. Bolivar has proclaimed martial law, and the inhabitants are flocking to his standard.

A third battle was fought on the 7th of August, the result of which was, that the army of Barasino was completely destroyed, with the exception of 400 men, who saved themselves by escape, and arrived at Mourpax on the river Magdalena. There were 600 killed and 400 taken prisoners.

On the 9th of August, the Vice Roy (Samano) evacuated Santa Fee, and on the 11th Bolivar took possession of the same.

Bolivar has despatched a division of his army against Carthagena.

New York, Oct. 25.

We learn by a passenger in the Hippomenes, which arrived yesterday from Curracoa, that general Morillo had taken Sante Fee, & was on his march with a considerable force to Maracaibo. A Spanish fleet of ten sail, consisting of a frigate, two sloops of war, and smaller vessels, were blockading Margaritta.

THE SPANISH PATRIOTS.

It is not a little surprising that almost all the Agents of the Spanish Patriots, who have been sent hither to propitiate our government in favor of their cause, should have failed in their object.

What is the reason of this failure?

The answer may, perhaps, be found in the fact, that these Agents have, more or less, suffered themselves to be used by certain politicians among us, who had other objects in view, different from that of serving the Patriots.

What should have been the course of procedure of these Agents on their arrival in the United States?

Obviously, to conciliate the members of government; to win it, as far as possible, to their views; and to obtain from it all they could in favor of Spanish American Independence.

But we have seen that some of these Agents have identified themselves with politicians hostile to the government; have, in fact, placed themselves in opposition to government; and have endeavored to extort by menace, what they should have endeavored to procure by suavity and a sole reliance upon the merits of their own cause.

The Agents of Spanish America may rely upon it, that those politicians with whom they have hitherto most associated, and upon whom they have most relied, have wanted the aid of the Patriots more than the Patriots have stood in need of their aid. This may appear rather a curious proposition; but in the sequel it will be found a very true one.

Here, for example, are certain politicians in the U. States, who are dissatisfied with the administration; but they have no just, nor even plausible, ground of complaint. They know, however, that the feelings of the people throughout the Union incline to the side of the Spanish Patriots; and they seize with alacrity on the Patriot cause to render themselves popular, and the administration odious. Thus have they hurt the cause of the Patriots, whose Agents would have effected a great deal more if they had never connected themselves with such an opposition.

The administration, we have every reason to believe, has been uniformly disposed to do what it could, consistently with the performance of its duties to the nation, for the performance of its duties to the nation, for the cause of the Spanish Americans. The political opponents of administration in this country, can, at no time, do any thing for them. The Agents of the Patriots must, now, we think, be convinced of their error; and we cannot doubt that more discretion will be observed by them in future.

From the Portland Gazette.

A SUGGESTION FOR THE FRAMERS OF THE NEW GOVERNMENT OF MAINE.

Laws for the encouragement of marriage and the promotion of population, have always till of late years, been considered of high importance among the first duties of legislators. In Rome an edict was declared upon edict and decree upon decree for this purpose; and although exemptions were made in favor of the married, and rewards given to fathers in proportion to the number of their children, still population could not be forced much beyond the means of subsistence; the poor would not get married, and the very dissipated of the higher classes would not have children. But it seems that a method has lately been discovered, which succeeds admirably. "In consequence of the exemption of married men from the military conscription now levying in Sicily, 80,000 young men got married in a few weeks." If it is thought expedient to encourage emigration into our extensive and fertile territory or promote matrimony within it, the successful experiment made in Sicily may afford perhaps a sufficient precedent for an act to exempt married men from military services.

From the New-York Columbian.

GENERAL MINA.

Sir—The extraordinary tenor of an article in one of your late papers, copied from a London publication, under the above head, and purporting to be 'derived from an eye witness, and a person of the highest credit and respectability,' struck me with astonishment, it being, with very few exceptions, such as the name of 'Soto la Marina,' the fate of the garrison of that place, and the ultimate remarks on the state of the country, from one to the other a string of falsehood and nonsense.

We beg leave to inform you that we were two of the lamented Mina's officers, and of course entered Mexico with him, were present at all his victories, and one of us on the staff, was actually with him when taken.—Since that period, we have been travelling over the kingdom, uniting with various corps of the patriots, and have been in ten of its provinces; were in the city of Mexico the 16th of July last, and only left Vera Cruz the 20th August, from whence we were liberated by the exertions of Capt. G. Coggershall, of the schr. Retrieve, in which vessel we arrived at Staten-Island the 2d inst. being two of five who escaped, excepting eight who yet remain in Mexico, out of the whole expedition. A history of this unfortunate business will soon be published.

Be good enough, Mr. Editor, to contradict the assertion alluded to, so deregatory to the honor of our late unfortunate but brave commander.—Twenty-Seven, Chatam-St.

From the Baltimore Morn. Chronicle, Oct. 25.

The question what mode of policy will be pursued by our government, since the rejection of the Spanish treaty is a question every moment becoming more important. We have already stated an opinion, that they mean to take possession of the Floridas. Congress have already sanctioned a measure of this kind, for they have declared war by anticipation against any other power that should take possession of that territory, which certainly comes very near taking possession ourselves. But it may be doubted, notwithstanding this measure appears so popular, whether it be in fact adviseable. The Floridas may belong to this continent at any moment when we choose to take possession: they are valuable to no other power than to America, and can be held only by them from adverse motives. Spain is vulnerable in a point of far more importance to her and to the world at large, than the Floridas. She is making one grand effort for the recovery of her South American dominions.—The question will in all probability be presented for the consideration of Congress at the next session, whether since the rejection of the treaty, it will not be necessary for us to acknowledge the independence of the South American Provinces. In comparison with a measure fraught with such important consequences as this, the occupation of the Floridas is nothing. We have already substantially done this deed—we have already consuls residing in South America, and the only reason why we have not received their officers in return was stated to be, that they did not come furnished with proper powers: the English have so far recognized the independence of the South American Provinces, that they have their consuls residing in those places. This is in fact a virtual acknowledgement of their independence, and it will remain for Congress to decide, whether they will now by a formal act do what they have already substantially done. It has been said, that Europe would take offence at such a measure. We do not know how this assertion has been made out by evidence. All the European powers have looked on with the most tranquil indifference, and beheld the controversy between Ferdinand and his revolted subjects; they have as yet afforded no assistance to the Spanish monarch, and it cannot surely from such evidence be proved, that they would interfere in his behalf if we adopt the cause of the revolted colonies. They wish to enjoy the commerce of those colonies which they never can do, if that country is reduced to its former allegiance: they have therefore the strongest motives to wish the independence of South America.—Besides we have ministers residing at foreign courts, and we can hardly suppose them so indifferent as never to have sounded the different cabinets on this subject.

A report was some time since in circulation, that Alexander had offered himself as a mediator between Ferdinand and his revolted subjects: this report wants confirmation, and it can hardly be believed, that England who has so large a stake in the independence of those colonies, would look without alarm on this Russian interference. In fact if any power in Europe did intend to espouse this quarrel, or even to become an arbitrator, the question is, why has not this been already done. Can any other motive be assigned for this European coldness, than that the powers are favorable to the cause of South America. Their indifference answers substantially all the purposes of an express acknowledgement. It may reasonably be conjectured, that Mr. Clay, will bring this question of acknowledgement before the House of Representatives, and perhaps under more favorable auspices than he has formerly done.

This is one view which the question will bear; we will shortly present another.

THE FASCINATIONS OF WAR.

The first great obstacle to the extinction of war is the way in which the heart of man is carried off from its barbarities and its horrors by the splendor of its deceitful accompaniments. Their is a feeling of the sublime in contemplating the devouring energy of a tempest, and this so elevates and engrosses the whole man, that his eye is blind to the tears of bereaved parents, and his ear is deaf to the piteous moan of the dying, and the shriek of her desolated families. There is a gracefulness in the picture of a youthful warrior burning for distinction on the field, and lured by this generous aspiration to the deepest of the animated throng, where in the fell work of death, the opposing sons of valor, struggle for a remembrance and a name, and this side of the picture is so much the exclusive object of our regard as to disguise from our view the mangled carcasses of the fallen, and the writhing agonies of the hundreds more who have been laid on the cold ground; where they are left to languish and to die.—Their no eye pities them. No sister is there to weep over them. There no gentle hand is present to ease the dying posture, or bind up the wounds, which in the maddening fury of the combat, have been given and received by the children of one common Father.—There death spreads its pale ensigns over every countenance, and when night comes on and darkness around them, how many a despairing wretch must take up with the bloody field as the intended bed of his last sufferings, without one friend to hear the message of tenderness to his distant home, without one companion to close his eyes. I avow it; On every side of me I see causes at work which go to spread a most delusive colouring over war, and to remove its shocking barbarities to the back ground of our contemplations altogether. I see it in the history which tells me of the superb appearance of the troops, and the brilliancy of their successive charges. I see it in the poetry which lends the magic of its numbers to the narrative of blood, and transports its many admirers—as by its images, and by its figures, and its nodding plumes of chivalry, it throws its treacherous embellishments over a scene of legalized slaughter. I see it in the music which represents the progress of the battle;—and where, after being inspired by the trumpet notes of preparation, the whole beauty and tenderness of a drawing room are seen to bend over the sentimental entertainment; nor do I hear the utterance of a single sigh to interupt the death tones of the thickening contest, and the moans of wounded men as they fade upon the ear, and sink into lifeless silence. All, all goes to prove what strange and half sighted creatures we

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN away on the 28th of April, from the farm of the subscriber, in Dogue Neck, Fairfax Co Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. I will give twenty dollars, if taken in the county of Fairfax, or district of Columbia; if beyond that distance, the above reward, provided he is secured in jail so that I get him again. WM. MASON.

100 Dollars Reward.

I WILL give the above reward to any person who will return to my possession, negro LAWRENCE, who assumes the sirname of FENWICK. This fellow left my farm, on the Wicomico river, in Charles county, Md. on the 6th July, in consequence of his own outrageous conduct towards my overseer. He is a negro of a fine erect figure, good features, asmooth black skin, rather above the middle stature, of a youthful appearance for one of thirty years of age, and of great plausibility and natural smartness. His ears grow remarkably close to his head, and on the inside of his lower lip he has a white mark or spot. I purchased him 4 years ago of the estate of Mrs. P. H. Courts, of this county. I am led (by circumstances which have come to my knowledge since he absconded,) to believe that he will endeavor to make his way to King George county, Va.; should he not take this route, he will probably be met with in the District of Columbia, or in the upper counties of this state, on his way to Pennsylvania. I apprehend he will change his name, and if committed to jail, refuse to state to whom he belongs, as the misconduct which preceded his departure, & his absconding, have all appeared since to have been premeditated. He took all his clothes with him, of which he had a large number; among them—a new bearskin over-coat, a long close-bodied blue coat, a pair of striped jean pantaloons, one or more white waistcoats, besides many articles of coarse cloathing; these, however, he will probably exchange, or sell them for cash to defray his travelling expenses.

I will give the above reward to any person who will bring him home to me, or FIFTY DOLLARS if confined in jail, and notice given me, so that I recover him.—Should he be taken out of the state, I will also pay all reasonable costs and charges which may attend the bringing him home.

PROSPECTUS

Of a new periodical work to be published in the city of Washington, entitled the

Washington Theological REPERTORY.

EDITORS. Rev. Wm Hawley, Washington, Rev. Wm. H. Wilmer, Alexandria, Rev. Oliver Norris, Alexandria, Rev. Reuel Keith, Georgetown.

Assisted by several other literary gentlemen of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

IF any apology were necessary for this undertaking, it may be found in the fact, that there is no publication on a similar plan, in all that section of our country lying south of New-York, and but one in the whole of the United States. It has been matter of equal surprize and regret, that the Episcopal Church should be so far behind other Christian denominations, in similar efforts to disseminate the principles of religion and piety. At a period like the present, when the Lord is preparing his way on earth, by the most remarkable efforts of human agency, and the most wonderful operations of his providence and grace—when we perceive in every part of Christendom, a praise-worthy emulation to share in the glorious work of filling the earth with the knowledge of the only true God, and his Son Jesus Christ; it would seem criminal for any to withhold their exertions, however feeble, in the great enterprize of human happiness and salvation. The editors have, therefore, felt it their duty to make this humble effort to supply this acknowledged deficiency on the part of the church in this section of the country, and to bear their share in the common exertions of Christians to promote the Redeemer's Kingdom. And having obtained the services of a gentleman, in whose talents and principles they have confidence, whose time will be wholly devoted to the superintendence of the work, they feel encouraged to solicit the patronage of the public.

The publecation will be conducted under the immediate inspection and control of the above named editors, who will form a committee to review every article intended for publication. The principles upon which it will be conducted are those of the bible, as illustrated in the articles, Liturgy and Homilies of the Protestant Episcopal Church. As members of this church the editors will feel bound to support the Apostolical character of her institutions, the pious tendency of her rites and ceremonies, and the evangelical nature of her doctrines. But in these, and all other discussions, they hope never to loose sight of that great law of charity which teaches us to "preserve the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace."

Acting upon those catholic principles, so long and so successively pursued by "The Christian Observer," their chief object will be to inculcate sound theological knowledge, and to delineate and recommend pure and vital religion. They trust therefore, that while the members of every Christian denomination may find something edifying and instructive, none will discover any just cause for offence in the pages of this work. General subjects of biblical criticism, practical illustrations of scriptural truth, the biography of illustrious persons, evidences of the truth of revelation, essays on the history and polity of the church, reviews of interesting publications, religious, literary and philosophical intelligence—in short, whatever is connected with the promotion of religion, humanity and literature, will find a place in this repository.

The testimony of experience supersedes the necessity of dwelling on the advantages of a periodical publication on the plan proposed. Its obvious tendency will be to render the various departments of religious knowledge more easy and accessible, and give a more ready currency and wider circulation, to those great truths which involve the present welfare and future destiny of man.

It will tend powerfully to stimulate the exertions of the editors, and console them under the difficulties attendant on the prosecution of this work, amidst many other avocations, should it prove the means under the blessing of God, of enriching any of its readers with the saving knowledge of Christ, and prepare them for a participation in the felicity and glory of his heavenly kingdom. With this hope they commit it into his hands, and confidently solicit their brethren of the clergy and laity to assist them in carrying into effect the objects of the undertaking.
